IMMIGRANT LEGAL RESOURCE CENTER, et al.,

Plaintiffs,

v.

CHAD F. WOLF, et al.,

Defendants.

Case No. 20-cv-05883-JSW

ORDER GRANTING PLAINTIFFS’ MOTION FOR PRELIMINARY
INJUNCTION AND REQUEST FOR STAY OF EFFECTIVE DATE OF RULE AND DENYING REQUEST FOR ADMINISTRATIVE STAY

Re: Dkt. No. 27

Now before the Court for consideration is the motion for a preliminary injunction filed by Plaintiffs¹, eight non-profit organizations that provide a variety of “services benefitting low-income applicants for immigration benefits.” Compl. ¶¶ 7, 14-21; see generally Dkt. Nos. 27-4 through 24-7, 27-10, and 27-12 through 27-14: Declarations of Lawrence Benito (ICIRR), Olga Byrne (IRC), Michael Byun (ACRS), Jeff Chenoweth (CLINIC), Michael Smith (EBSC), Melissa Rodgers (ILRC), Angelica Salas (CHIRLA), and Rich Stolz (One America); see also Docket No. 95 (describing populations served and types of services provided).

Defendants are Chad Wolf (“Mr. Wolf”), in his capacity as Acting Secretary of the United States Department of Homeland Security (“DHS”), DHS, Kenneth T. Cuccinelli (“Mr. Cuccinelli”), in his capacity as Senior Official Performing the Duties of Deputy Secretary of Homeland Security, and USCIS.²

¹ Immigrant Legal Resource Center (“ILRC”), East Bay Sanctuary Covenant (“EBSC”), Coalition for Human Immigrant Rights (“CHIRLA”), Catholic Legal Immigration Network, Inc. (“CLINIC”), International Rescue Committee (“IRC”), OneAmerica, Asian Counseling and Referral Service (“ACRS”), and the Illinois Coalition for Immigrant and Refugee Rights (“ICIRR”).

² Plaintiffs contend that neither Mr. Wolf nor Mr. Cuccinelli are lawfully serving in those

 2 Certain Other Immigration Benefit Request Requirements, 85 Fed. Reg. 46,788 (Aug. 3, 2020)
 3 (“Final Rule”) and to stay its effective date of October 2, 2020.³ See Dkt. No. 74-1, Reply
 4 Declaration of Brian Stretch (“Stretch Reply Decl.”), ¶ 2, Ex. 35 (Final Rule). The Court has 5 considered the parties’ papers, including all supplemental submissions, relevant legal authority, 6 the record in this case, and the parties’ arguments at the hearing held on September 25, 2020.⁴ For 7 the reasons that follow, the Court GRANTS Plaintiffs’ motion. The Court also determines that a 8 brief administrative stay of this ruling pending any decision by Defendants to appeal this Order is 9 not warranted. However, if Defendants do file an appeal, nothing in this Order shall preclude 10 them from filing a motion to stay before this Court.

11 BACKGROUND

12 USCIS is funded primarily by the fees it collects, rather by Congressional appropriations, 13 and its budget is separate from the budgets for the agencies that provide DHS’s enforcement
 14 services, Immigration and Customs Enforcement (“ICE”) and Customs and Border Protection
 15 (“CBP”). See 6 U.S.C. § 296; 8 U.S.C. §§ 1356(h), (m); see also Compl. ¶¶ 47-49, 56. Fees 16 collected by USCIS are deposited in the Immigration Examinations Fee Account (“IEFA”) to offices.

19 ³ There are at least two additional cases that challenge all or portions of the Final Rule on 20 the same or similar grounds raised by Plaintiffs here. See Northwest Immigrant Rights Project, et 21 al., v. U.S. Customs & Immigration Servs., et al., D.D.C No. 19-cv-3283-RDM; Project
 22 Citizenship, Inc. v. U.S. Dep’t of Homeland Sec., et al., D. Ma. No. 20-cv-11545-NMG. The court in Northwest Immigrants held a hearing on the plaintiffs’ motion for a preliminary injunction on September 24, 2020. The court in Project Citizenship is scheduled to hear the plaintiff’s motion for a preliminary injunction on October 23, 2020.

23 ⁴ The Court also considered eight amicus briefs. The Constitutional Accountability Center 24 (“CAC”) (Dkt. No. 38-1) and The Cato Institute (“Cato”) (Dkt. No. 39) provided additional argument in support Plaintiffs on the issues addressed in Section B of this Order. The remaining 25 briefs filed in support of Plaintiffs’ motion are from: (1) the Alliance of Business Immigration Lawyers (Dkt. No. 36); (2) a group of ten non-profit immigration advocates and legal and social 26 service providers, including Kids in Need of Defense and the National Immigration Justice Center
 (Dkt. No. 47-1); (3) a group of twenty-one local governments and elected officials, including the 27 County of Santa Clara and the City of New York (Dkt. No. 54); (4) a group of nineteen states, including California (Dkt. No. 55); and (5) Reclaim the Records (Dkt. No. 65-1). The 28 Immigration Reform Law Institute filed an amicus brief in support of Defendants. (Dkt. No. 51.)

1 provide “adjudication and naturalization services.” 8 U.S.C. § 1356(m). Those fees

2 may be set at a level that will ensure recovery of the full costs of 3 providing all such services, including the costs of similar services 4 provided without charge to asylum applicants or other immigrants.
 Such fees may also be set at a level that will recover any additional costs associated with the administration of the fees collected.

5 Id.

6 USCIS conducts biennial fee reviews and, during the review for Fiscal Years (“FY”) 2019/2020, “determined that current fees do not recover the full cost of providing adjudication and naturalization services.” Final Rule, 85 Fed. Reg. at 46,788; see also id. at 46,789 (stating “[f]ee schedule adjustments are necessary to recover the full operating costs associated with administering the nation’s lawful immigration system and safeguarding its integrity and promise by efficiently and fairly adjudicating requests for immigration benefit[s], while protecting Americans, securing the homeland, and honoring our values”); see also Stretch Reply Decl., ¶ 5, Ex. 38 (2019-2020 IEFA Fee Review Supporting Documentation with Addendum, May 2020 (“May IEFA Fee Review”)).

15 On November 14, 2019, following that biennial fee review, DHS issued a notice of proposed rule-making signed by Kevin K. McAleenan (“Mr. McAleenan”) as “Acting Secretary”. Stretch Reply. Decl., ¶ 3, Ex. 36 (USCIS Fee Schedule & Changes to Certain Other Immigration Benefit Request Requirements, 84 Fed. Reg. 62,280, at 62,280 and 62,371 (Nov. 14, 2019) (“NPRM”)). DHS stated that the current fee levels “are insufficient to recover the full cost of [USCIS’s] operations funded by the IEFA” and stated that if USCIS “continues to operate at current fee levels, it would experience an average annual shortfall (the amount by which expenses exceed revenue) of $1,262.3 million.” Id. at 62,282. DHS required written comments to be submitted before December 16, 2019, although DHS extended the comment period twice. The comment period eventually closed on February 10, 2020. See Stretch Reply Decl., ¶ 4, Ex. 4 (84 Fed. Reg. 67,243 (Dec. 19, 2019)); see also 85 Fed. Reg. 4,243 (Jan. 24, 2020). DHS published the Final Rule on August 3, 2020.

27 DHS initially proposed to adjust fees by a weighted average increase of 21 percent. NPRM, 84 Fed. Reg. at 46,280. In the Final Rule DHS adjusts “USCIS fees by a weighted

1 average increase of 20 percent, add[s] new fees for certain immigration benefit requests, 2 establish[es] multiple fees for non-immigrant worker petitions, and limit[s] the number of 3 beneficiaries for certain forms.” Final Rule, 85 Fed. Reg. at 46,788. The Final Rule also makes 4 changes to fee waivers by eliminating the ability to seek a waiver for some fees and by changing 5 the criteria used to determine if an individual is eligible for a waiver. Id. at 46,789.

6 While Plaintiffs challenge the validity of the Final Rule in its entirety, they highlight that 7 DHS will require a $50.00 non-waivable fee to apply for asylum. See id. at 46,844. The 8 Immigration and Nationality Act (“INA”) permits USCIS to impose a fee “for the consideration of 9 an application for asylum [and] for employment authorization” so long as the fees do not “exceed 10 the Attorney General’s costs in adjudicating the applications.” 8 U.S.C. § 1158(d). Until this rule 11 was proposed, the United States did not charge a fee to apply for asylum.⁵ Instead, the cost of 12 applying for asylum has been subsidized by “other fee-paying benefit requestors[.]” NPRM, 84 13 Fed. Reg. at 62,318. In addition to the application fees, immigrants seeking asylum also will be 14 required to pay a $550.00 for their first Employment Authorization Document (“EAD”), as well as 15 a $30.00 biometric fee. None of these three fees can be waived. The Final Rule does provide for 16 “a $50 reduction in the fee for Form I-485, Application to Register Permanent Residence or 17 Adjust Status, filed in the future, for principal applicants who pay the $50 fee for Form I-589 and 18 are subsequently granted asylum.” Final Rule, 85 Fed. Reg. at 46,790.

19 On the same day DHS issued this NRPM, it also initiated a proposed rule-making 20 procedure regarding Asylum Application, Interview, and Employment Authorization for 21 Applicants. See 85 Fed. Reg. 38,532 (June 26, 2020). Under prior rules, applicants for asylum 22 had to wait 180 days before they could work in the United States, but DHS extended that waiting 23 period to 365 days. See 85 Fed. Reg. at 38,626 (to be codified at 8 C.F.R. § 208.7(a)(1)(ii)) (“An 24 applicant for asylum cannot apply for initial employment authorization earlier than 365 calendar 25

27 ⁵ This decision makes the United States one of four countries that impose fees to apply for 28 this type of relief. According to the record, Iran, Fiji, and Australia also charge fees for asylum or refugee protection but provide for waivers or exemptions in some instances. See Final Rule, 85
Fed. Reg. at 46,848; NPRM, 84 Fed. Reg. at 62,319.

1 days after the date USCIS or the immigration court receives the asylum application[.]”), enjoined,
2 in part, by Casa de Maryland, Inc. v. Wolf, No. 8:20-cv-02118-PX, -- F. Supp. 3d --, 2020 WL
3 5500165, at *2 n.3 (D. Md. Sept. 11, 2020) (“Casa de Maryland”) (noting that “[i]n the last year,” 4 DHS has pursued rulemakings that “would make it more difficult to secure asylum” and citing, 5 inter alia, NPRM, 84 Fed. Reg. 62,280).

6 Plaintiffs also highlight the fact that DHS increased the application fee for naturalization 7 from $640 to $1,170, increased other fees associated with naturalization, and eliminated the option
8 to obtain fee waivers for those fees. Final Rule, 85 Fed. Reg. at 46,791-792, Table 1 (noting fee 9 increases for Forms N-300, N-36, N-400, N-470). DHS did reduce the fee associated with 10 renewing lawful permanent resident (“LPR”) status, but it “unbundled” fees for three applications 11 associated with obtaining LPR status: the application for permanent residency (Form I-485), the 12 application for an EAD (Form I-765), and an application for travel document (Form I-131.) Id., at 13 46,791-792 & Table 1. Plaintiffs allege that, since 2007, there has been flat fee of $1,140 for 14 those applications ($750 for children under 14). DHS will now charge $1,130 for Form I-485, 15 $550 for Form I-765, and $590 for Form I-131. Id.

16 Plaintiffs also highlight the changes to fee waivers in the Final Rule. “The 2011 Fee 17 Waiver Policy” provided that an applicant could qualify for a fee waiver if: (1) they received a 18 means-tested benefit; (2) had household incomes at or below 150% of the Federal Poverty 19 Guidelines (“FPG”); or (3) could establish extreme financial hardship. See NPRM, 84 Fed. Reg.
20 at 62,298. The NPRM noted that the proposed rule would “further limit[] forms eligible for a fee 21 waiver and the criteria to establish eligibility for a fee waiver. Id. Under the Final Rule, where fee 22 waivers are still available, an applicant will be eligible only if their annual household income is 23 less than 125% of the FPG.⁶ Final Rule, 85 Fed. Reg. at 46,819-820.

Reg. at 62,297, Table 7; Final Rule, 85 Fed. Reg. at 46,812-813, Table 3.

3 ANALYSIS

4 A. Legal Standards Applicable to a Motion for a Preliminary Injunction.

5 In order to prevail on their motion, “Plaintiffs must show that (1) they are likely to succeed 6 on the merits, (2) they are likely to ‘suffer irreparable harm’ without relief, (3) the balance of 7 equities tips in their favor, and (4) an injunction is in the public interest.” East Bay Sanctuary
8 Covenant v. Barr, 964 F.3d 832, 844-45 (9th Cir. 2020) (“Barr”); see also Winter v. Nat. Res. Def.
9 Council, Inc., 555 U.S. 7, 20 (2008). Where, as here, “the government is a party these last two 10 factors merge.” Barr, 964 F.3d at 845 (quoting Drakes Bay Oyster Co. v. Jewell, 747 F.3d 1073, 11 1092 (9th Cir. 2014). In Alliance for the Wild Rockies v. Cottrell, the Ninth Circuit held that the 12 “serious questions” sliding scale approach survives Winter. 632 F.3d 1127, 1134-35 (9th Cir.
13 2011). Thus, a court may grant a preliminary injunction if a plaintiff demonstrates that there are 14 serious questions going to the merits and a hardship balance that tips sharply in its favor, and the 15 other two elements of the Winter test are also met. Id. at 1132.

16 Under the APA, “[o]n such conditions as may be required and to the extent necessary to 17 prevent irreparable injury, the reviewing court, . . . , may issue all necessary and appropriate process 18 to postpone the effective date of an agency action or to preserve status or rights pending 19 conclusion of the review proceedings.” 5 U.S.C. § 705. “The factors considered when issuing 20 such a stay substantially overlap with the Winter factors for a preliminary injunction.” City and 21 County of San Francisco v. U.S. Customs & Immigration Servs., 408 F. Supp. 3d 1057, 1078
22 (N.D. Cal. 2019).

23 B. Plaintiffs’ Challenges to the Validity of Mr. McAleenan’s and Mr. Wolf’s Service as 24 Acting Secretary of DHS.

25 The APA permits a court to, inter alia, “hold unlawful and set aside agency action, 26 findings and conclusions found to be - arbitrary, capricious, an abuse of discretion, or otherwise 27 not in accordance with law.” 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A). Plaintiffs assert the Final Rule must be set 28 aside as contrary to law because neither Mr. McAleenan nor Mr. Wolf were lawfully serving as

1 Acting Secretary when the NRPM and Final Rule were issued. Plaintiffs argue the appointments:
2 (1) were not effective under the relevant provisions of the Homeland Security Act (“HSA”); and 3 (2) violated the time limitations on service contained in the Federal Vacancies Reform Act 4 (“FVRA”).

5 Under the Appointments Clause, the President is granted the power to nominate Officers of 6 the United States, such as DHS Secretary. U.S. Const., art. II, § 2, cl.2. That power is 7 counterbalanced by “[t]he Senate’s advice and consent power ... a critical structural safeguard of 8 the constitutional scheme.” NLRB v. Sw. General, Inc., -- U.S. --, 137 S.Ct. 929, 935 (2017) (“Sw.
9 General I”) (internal quotations, alterations and citations omitted). The Senate’s power to advise 10 and consent was designed to place a “‘check upon a spirit of favoritism in the President,’ ‘prevent 11 the appointment of unfit characters,’ and provide a ‘source of stability in the administration.’” 12 Bullock v. U.S. Bureau of Land Mgmt., No. 20-cv-000620-BMM, -- F. Supp. 3d --, 2020 WL
13 5746836, at *7 (D. Mont. Sept. 25, 2020) (quoting The Federalist No. 76 (A. Hamilton)).

14 On April 7, 2019, former DHS Secretary Kirstjen M. Nielsen announced her resignation
15 and left office on April 10, 2019. President Trump did not submit a nominee to replace Secretary 16 Nielsen until September 10, 2020, when he nominated Mr. Wolf for that position. As that delay 17 demonstrates, “[t]he constitutional process of Presidential appointment and Senate confirmation 18 [PAS] can take time.” Sw. General II, 137 S.Ct. at 935. To account for such delays, Congress 19 enacted vacancy statutes through which it gives “the President limited authority to appoint acting 20 officials to temporarily perform the functions of a PAS office without first obtaining Senate
21 approval.” Id.; see also Casa De Maryland, 2020 WL 5500165, at *14. Those vacancy statutes 22 “allowed the President to fill vacancies with temporary acting officers, subject to limitations on 23 whom he could appoint and how long the appointee could serve.” Sw. General, Inc. v. NLRB, 796
24 F.3d 67, 81 (D.C. Cir. 2015) (“Sw. General I”). The Executive Branch did not always comply 25 with those limitations, resulting in “interbranch conflict” and, eventually, the passage of the 26 FVRA in 1998. See Sw. General II, 137 S.Ct. at 935-36.⁷

27
28 ⁷ The Court will not detail the history of the various vacancy statutes or the conflicts that ultimately led to the passage of the FVRA, which are detailed in Southwest General II, 137 S.Ct.

1 Section 3345 of the FVRA addresses who may fill a vacancy in a PAS office. 5 U.S.C. § 2 3345(a). Section 3345(a) sets forth a “default” rule, which provides that the “first assistant” to the 3 vacant office “shall perform the functions and duties of the office temporarily in an acting capacity 4 subject to the time limitations of section 3346.” Alternatively, “the President (and only the 5 President) may direct” an individual to serve temporarily in an acting capacity “subject to the time 6 limitations of section 3346[.]” 5 U.S.C. § 3345(a)(2)-(3). Section 3345 of the FVRA also 7 addresses who is not eligible to serve as an acting officer. By way of example, “a person may not 8 service as an acting officer for an office under this section if -- during the 365-day period 9 preceding the” vacancy “such person ... did not serve in the position of first assistant to the office 10 of such officer ... and the President submits a nomination of such person to the Senate to such 11 office.” 5 U.S.C. §§ 3345(b)(1)(A)(i), (B); see also Sw. General II, 137 S.Ct. at 938. The 12 Supreme Court has held the prohibition contained in Section 3345(b)(1) applies to each subsection 13 of 3345(a). Sw. General II, 137 S.Ct. at 935.

14 Subject to an exception not relevant here, “the person serving as an acting officer as 15 described under section 3345 may serve in the office – (1) for no longer than 210 days beginning 16 on the date the vacancy occurs; or (2) ... once a first or second nomination for the office is 17 submitted to the Senate, from the date of such nomination for the period that the nomination is 18 pending in the Senate.” 5 U.S.C. §§ 3346(a)(1)-(2). The FVRA also establishes certain penalties 19 for non-compliance with its terms. “An action taken by any person who is not acting under 20 section 3345, 3346, or 3347, or as provided by [section 3348] subsection (b), in the performance 21 of any function or duty of a vacant office to which this section and sections 3346, 3347, 3349, 22 3349a, 3349b, and 3349c apply shall have no force and effect.” 5 U.S.C. § 3348(d)(1) (emphasis 23 added). Such an action also “may not be ratified.” Id. § 3348(d)(2).

24 “Congress enacted the FVRA against the backdrop of several agency-specific succession 25 statutes applicable to PAS offices,” and it added an “exclusivity” provision, Section 3347, to 26 accommodate those statutes. Casa de Maryland, 2020 WL 5500165, at *15. Section 3347

11 Enter the HSA, which provides that the Deputy Secretary “shall be the Secretary’s first 12 assistant for purposes of” the FVRA, expressly incorporating the “first assistant” language used in 13 the FVRA. Pub. L. No. 107-296, § 103, 116 Stat. 2135, 2144 (2002) (emphasis added) (codified 14 at 6 U.S.C. § 113(a)(1)(A)).

15 On December 15, 2016, former DHS Secretary Jeh Johnson issued DHS Delegation No.
 16 00106 (“Delegation 00106”), DHS Orders of Succession and Delegations of Authorities for 17 Named Positions, Revision 8 (“Revision 8”). Dkt. No. 75-1, Declaration of Bradley Craigmyle 18 (“Craigmyle Decl.”), ¶ 6, Ex. 8. Section II.A of Revision 8 states that “[i]n the case of the 19 Secretary’s death, resignation, or inability to perform the functions of the Office, the orderly 20 succession of officials is governed by Executive Order 13753 [“E.O. 13753”], amended on 21 December 9, 2016.” Revision 8 at 1. Under E.O. 13753, the order of succession was: Deputy 22 Secretary; Under Secretary for Management; Administrator of the Federal Emergency 23 Management Agency (“FEMA”); and Director of Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security 24 Agency (“CISA”).⁸ Revision 8, Section II.B. states “I hereby delegate to the officials occupying 25 the identified positions in the order listed (Annex A), my authority to exercise the powers and 26 perform the functions and duties of my office, to the extent not otherwise prohibited by law, in the 27 event I am unavailable to act during a disaster or catastrophic emergency.” (Id.) The first four 28 officials listed in Annex A are the same four officials listed in E.O. 13753.

⁸ E.O. 13753 actually states that the Under Secretary for National Protection and Programs is fourth in the line of succession. “[T]hat agency has been re-designated as the Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency,” and the Under Secretary for NPP is the Director of CISA. Casa de Maryland, 2020 WL 5500165, at *21 n.15; see also 6 U.S.C. § 652(a)(1)-(2).

1 On December 23, 2016, Congress amended the HSA to provide that the Under Secretary of 2 Management “shall be first assistant to the Deputy Secretary ... for purposes of” the FVRA. Pub.
3 L. No. 114-328, § 1903, 130 Stat. 2000, 2672 (2016) (codified at 6 U.S.C. § 113(a)(1)(F)
4 (emphasis added). Congress also added subsection (g), entitled “Vacancies.” Id. (codified at 6 5 U.S.C. § 113(g)). Section 113(g)(1) provides that “[n]otwithstanding [the FVRA], “the Under 6 Secretary of Management shall serve as the Acting Secretary if by reason of ... vacancy in office, 7 neither the Secretary nor Deputy Secretary is available to exercise the duties of the Office of the 8 Secretary.” Section 113(g)(2) provides that “[n]otwithstanding [the FVRA], the Secretary may 9 designate such other officers of the Department in further order of succession to serve as Acting 10 Secretary.”

11 On April 9, 2019, Secretary Nielsen signed a memorandum entitled “Designation of an 12 Order of Succession for the Secretary.” Craigmyle Decl., ¶ 3, Ex. 2. The Court refers that 13 memorandum and its attachment as the “April 9 Order.” It is undisputed that the first time a DHS 14 Secretary purported to alter the order of succession, pursuant to the authority granted in Section 15 113(g)(2), was when Secretary Nielsen issued the April 9 Order. The memorandum notes that 16 Secretary Nielsen had expressed her “desire to designate certain officers of the Department of 17 Homeland Security ... in order of succession to serve as Acting Secretary” and states “[y]our 18 approval of the attached document will accomplish such designation.” April 9 Order at 1. It also 19 refers to the attachment as “Annex A.” The discussion section of the memorandum is redacted 20 but concludes with the statement that “[b]y approving the attached document, you will designate 21 your desired order of succession for the Secretary of Homeland Security in accordance with your 22 authority pursuant to” 6 U.S.C. section 113(g)(2). Id. The attachment states:

23 Amending the Order of Succession in the Department of 24 Homeland Security.

25 By the authority vested in me as Secretary of Homeland Security, 26 including the Homeland Security Act of 2002, 6 U.S.C. § 113(g)(2),

Homeland Security as follows:

amended by striking the text of such Annex in its entirety and inserting the following in lieu thereof:

Annex A: Order for Delegation of Authority by the Secretary of the Department of Homeland Security.

- 1. Deputy Secretary of Homeland Security.
- 2. Under Secretary for Management;
- 3. Commissioner of [CPB].
- 4. Administrator of [FEMA].

No individual who is serving in an office herein listed in an acting capacity, by virtue of so serving, shall act as Secretary pursuant to this designation.

Id. at 2.

The April 9 Order thus amended the officials listed in Annex A by inserting the CBP Commissioner above the FEMA Administrator. On April 10, 2019, DHS updated Delegation 00106 with Revision 08.5 (“Revision 8.5”). That revision provides, in relevant part:

II. Succession Order/Delegation.

A. In the case of the Secretary’s death, resignation, or inability to perform the functions of the Office, the orderly succession of officials is governed by Executive Order 13753, amended on December 9, 2016.

B. I hereby delegate to the officials occupying the identified positions in the order listed (Annex A) my authority to exercise the powers and perform the functions and duties of my office, to the extent not otherwise prohibited by law, in the event I am unable to act during a disaster or catastrophic emergency.

Craigmyle Decl., ¶ 5, Ex. 4. Thus, the text of Section II.A in Revision 8.5 remained identical to the text of Section II.A in Revision 8.

As of the effective date of Secretary Nielsen’s resignation, the offices of the Deputy Secretary and the Under Secretary of Management were vacant, and Mr. McAleenan was serving in the Senate-confirmed role of CPB Commissioner. Mr. McAleenan assumed the title of DHS Acting Secretary, and when DHS notified Congress of the vacancy left by Secretary Nielsen’s

1 resignation, it advised he had done so pursuant to 6 U.S.C. section 113(g)(2). Dkt. No. 75-3, 2 Plaintiffs' Notice and Request to Submit Supplemental Briefing, Ex. 3 at 2.

3 Mr. McAleenan putatively served as Acting Secretary from April 10, 2019, until 4 November 13, 2019, when he resigned. On or about November 8, 2019, Mr. McAleenan issued an 5 order that explicitly amended Section II.A of Delegation 00106 to provide that "In the case of the 6 Secretary's death, resignation, or inability to perform the functions of the Office, the order of 7 succession of officials is governed by Annex A." He also amended the order of officials listed in 8 Annex A to insert the Under Secretary for Strategy, Policy, and Plans above the FEMA 9 Administrator. That amendment also includes the proviso that "[n]o individual who is serving in 10 an office herein listed in an acting capacity, by virtue of so serving, shall act as Secretary pursuant 11 to this designation." Craigmyle Decl., ¶ 8, Ex. 7. Mr. Wolf was the Senate-confirmed Secretary 12 for Strategy, Policy and Plans and, thus, purported to assume the role of Acting Secretary of DHS.
13 At the time Mr. Wolf assumed the role of Acting Secretary of DHS, the office had been without a 14 Senate-confirmed Secretary for 217 days.

15 1. Plaintiffs Have Met Their Burden to Show They Are Likely to Succeed on 16 their Claim that Mr. McAleenan and Mr. Wolf Were Not Lawfully Serving 17 Under the HSA.

18 The parties agree that under Section 113(g)(2), Secretary Nielsen had the authority to 19 designate an order of succession in the event of her resignation and that she could supersede the 20 provisions of E.O. 13753. They dispute whether Secretary Nielsen's "desire" to change the order 21 of succession was realized. According to Plaintiffs, the language of Revision 8.5 controls and 22 Section II.A of that document demonstrates that E.O. 13753 still governed the order of succession
23 in the event of the Secretary's resignation. Pursuant to that order of succession, Mr. McAleenan 24 was seventh in line and, thus, was not eligible to assume the role of Acting Secretary. Defendants 25 argue the language of the April 9 Order controls and, pursuant to that order, Mr. McAleenan's 26 appointment was valid. Defendants conceded at the hearing that if this Court rejects their 27 arguments on this issue, which it does, the Final Rule would have been promulgated without 28 lawful authority.

Defendants arguments have been considered and rejected by two district courts and by the

8 In La Clinica de la Raza, the plaintiffs challenged DHS’ “public charge” rule and argued 9 that the rule was invalid because Mr. McAleenan had not been validly appointed under the HSA
10 and because his appointment violated the FVRA. 2020 WL 4569462, at *13. The court, 11 reviewing the plain language of the April 9 Order, determined that it “only replaced Annex A and 12 made no other changes to Delegation No. 00106. Thus, when Secretary Nielsen resigned,” E.O.
13 13753 governed the succession of officials in the event of vacancy and Annex A “applied when 14 the Secretary was unavailable due to disaster or emergency.” Id. The court also reasoned that if 15 Secretary Nielsen had intended to modify the order of succession in the event of a vacancy, she 16 “could have so stated” as Mr. McAleenan did when he amended Delegation 00106. Id., 2020 WL
17 4569462, at *14.⁹

18 In Casa de Maryland, the court also determined that Revision 8.5 meant what it said: E.O.
19 13753 would govern the order of succession in the event of a vacancy due to resignation and 20 concluded the defendants provided no basis to ignore its plain language. 2020 WL 5500165, at 21 *20. The court also rejected the defendants’ arguments that the references to the order of 22 succession and the authority provided under Section 113(g)(2) demonstrated that Secretary 23

24 ⁹ The court nonetheless granted the defendants motion to dismiss because “Plaintiffs do not 25 allege that McAleenan failed to meet one of the three options provided by the FVRA for the 26 temporary appointment of officers.” La Clinica de la Raza, 2020 WL 4569462, at *14. The court 27 concluded that Mr. McAleenan’s appointment may have been valid under the FVRA. Id. The 28 court recently granted leave to file a motion to reconsider that decision based on plaintiffs’ assertion that defendants have taken the position in other cases, notably Casa de Maryland, that Mr. McAleenan was not appointed pursuant to the FVRA. La Clinica de la Raza v. Trump, N.D.
Cal. No. 19-cv-4980-PJH, Dkt. No. 182 (Order Granting Motion for Leave to File), Dkt. No. 183 (Motion to Reconsider at 3:5-4:2).)

1 Nielsen altered the line of succession in the event of a vacancy. The court determined that 2 language “at best state[d] the obvious – that Nielsen had the authority to change the succession
3 order as applied to the office of the Secretary,” but it did not support the proposition that she did
4 so. Id., 2020 WL 55001665, at *22.¹⁰

5 Because Mr. McAleenan was not the next in line under E.O. 13753, the court could not 6 “help but conclude” he assumed “the role of Acting Secretary without lawful authority.” Id., 2020
7 WL 5500165, at *21. The court also noted the difference between Mr. McAleenan’s amendment
8 to Delegation 00106, which expressly amended Section II.A, and Secretary Nielsen’s 9 amendments, which did not. Id. The court determined that because Mr. McAleenan had not been 10 lawfully appointed, his amendments to the order of succession were done without authority, 11 impacting Mr. Wolf’s subsequent appointment to the role of Acting Secretary and making it likely 12 that the rules at issue would be invalidated under the APA. Id., 2020 WL 55001665, at *21.

13 Defendants also argue that the additional sentence at the conclusion of the April 9 Order is 14 reflective of language used when establishing orders of succession. Defendants also argue their 15 position is supported by a distinction between a delegation of authority and an order of succession, 16 a distinction that is reflected in the HSA. Under the HSA, the Secretary has the authority to 17 delegate his or her authority to “any officer, employee, or organizational unit of the Department”
18 and to designate a further order of succession. Compare 6 U.S.C. § 112(b)(1) with 6 U.S.C. § 19 113(g)(2). While that argument has surface appeal, Secretary Nielsen purported to strike the text 20 of Annex A in its entirety. The replacement text continues to state “Annex A. Order for 21 Delegation of Authority....” April 9 Order at 2. Defendants also do not provide a persuasive 22 argument as to why it was necessary for Mr. McAleenan to amend Section II.A of Delegation 23 00106, if Secretary Nielsen had already accomplished that change. The Court finds the reasoning 24

25 ¹⁰ The court also noted that defendants failed to cite any authority for the proposition that 26 Delegation 00106 is merely an administrative document as an explanation for why the April 9 27 Order controls. Here, Defendants do provide a declaration from Neal J. Swartz, submitted in 28 connection with a different case, that provides factual support for that argument. Craigmyle Decl., ¶ 5, Ex. 4. They also cite to Vill. of Bald Head Island v. U.S. Army Corps. Of Eng’rs, which noted that in the context of the APA, project implementation is not “final agency action” under the APA.
714 F.3d 186, 195 (4th Cir. 2013). The Court does not find that authority persuasive in this context.

1 set forth in La Clinica de la Raza and Casa de Maryland on the succession issue highly 2 persuasive, and like the Casa de Maryland court concludes that Plaintiffs are likely to show that 3 the appointments were not lawful and, thus, that the Final Rule is likely invalid under the APA.

4 On September 10, 2020, President Trump formally nominated Mr. Wolf to serve as DHS 5 Secretary. On that same day, Peter T. Gaynor, who became the acting FEMA Administrator in 6 2019 and was officially confirmed by the Senate in January 2020, “out of an abundance of caution 7 and to minimize any disruption occasioned” by the GAO Opinion, issued a document entitled 8 “Order Designating the Order of Succession for the Secretary of Homeland Security,” which 9 mirrored the order Mr. McAleenan issued in November 2019. Craigmyle Decl., ¶ 2, Ex. 1 10 (“Gaynor order”). Administrator Gaynor states that he exercised this authority pursuant to the 11 FVRA and the order of succession set forth in E.O. 13753, “[a]s the most senior successor listed” 12 in E.O. 13753, “in accordance with the President’s advance exercise of his authority to name an 13 Acting Secretary under the FVRA.” Id. (emphasis added). Administrator Gaynor also stated that 14 “[u]pon my signature, any authority that I may have been granted by the FVRA will terminate 15 because 6 U.S.C. § 113(g)(2) applies notwithstanding chapter 33 of title 5.” Id. (internal 16 quotations omitted). There is nothing in the record that demonstrates whether Administrator 17 Gaynor issued this order before or after President Trump sent Mr. Wolf’s nomination to the 18 Senate.

19 On September 17, 2020, after briefing on the motion had closed, Mr. Wolf issued a 20 document entitled “Ratification of Actions Taken by the Acting Secretary of Homeland Security” 21 (the “Ratification”).¹¹ Dkt. No. 80-1, Declaration of Bradley Craigmyle dated Sept. 18, 2020, ¶ 2, 22 Ex. 1. In the Ratification, Mr. Wolf purports to “affirm[] and ratify[] each of my delegable prior 23 actions as Acting Secretary ... out of an abundance of caution[,]” including the Notice of Proposed 24 Rule Making that led to the Final Rule at issue here, as well as the Final Rule. Ratification at 1-2.

25 Defendants argue that the Ratification nullifies Plaintiffs’ first claim for relief because “a 26 subsequent valid appointment, coupled with ratification, cures any initial” defects. Consumer

27

28 ¹¹ By adopting this definition, the Court is not expressing its views on the validity of those actions.

1 Protection Fin. Bureau v. Gordon, 819 F.3d 1179, 1190-91 (9th Cir. 2016) (emphasis added).
 2 When Mr. Wolf issued the Ratification, his nomination was – and still is – pending confirmation.
 3 Defendants also maintain that by virtue of the Gaynor order, Mr. Wolf is not serving pursuant to 4 the FVRA, which would trigger the prohibition on his service under Section 3345(b)(1), even 5 though the Gaynor order suggests that President Trump submitted Mr. Wolf’s nomination
 6 pursuant to the FVRA. Sw. General II, 137 S.Ct. at 935. The effectiveness of the Ratification 7 depends upon a valid appointment. Consumer Protection Fin. Bureau, 816 F.3d at 1190-91. For 8 the reasons set forth above, the Court concludes Plaintiffs have shown that they are likely to 9 succeed on the merits of their claim that Mr. Wolf was not validly serving in office. At the very 10 least, Plaintiffs have shown that recent events support a finding that there a serious questions 11 going to the merits of their claim that the Final Rule is contrary to law.

12 2. Plaintiffs Have Not Met Their Burden to Show They Are Likely to Succeed on 13 the Merits of their Claim that Mr. McAleenan’s and Mr. Wolf’s Appointments
 14 Violated the FVRA.

15 The FVRA’s default rule provides that if a PAS position becomes vacant following a 16 resignation, the “first assistant” would step into the rule and could serve for “no longer than 210 17 days beginning on the date the vacancy occurs[.]” 5 U.S.C. §§ 3345(a)(1), 3346(a)(1). It is 18 undisputed that when Mr. Wolf assumed the role of Acting Secretary, more than 210 days had 19 elapsed since Secretary Nielsen resigned. The parties’ dispute centers primarily on whether the 20 time limits set forth in Section 3346 of the FVRA would apply to individuals serving pursuant to 21 an agency-specific succession statute, such as Section 113(g)(2). Plaintiffs contend that Section 22 3346’s time limits are applicable; therefore, Mr. Wolf did not validly hold office. See also Dkt.
 23 No. 39, Cato Brief at 20 (arguing the “simplest” reason the appointment is invalid is because Mr.
 24 Wolf assumed the role after 210 days elapsed following Secretary Nielsen’s resignation). “If it 25 were only that simple.” Casa de Maryland, 2020 WL 5500165, at *15.

26 In that case, the plaintiffs challenged two sets of rule changes to asylum procedures, 27 including the waiting period to obtain an EAD. The plaintiffs, as Plaintiffs do here, argued the 28 rules were invalid because Mr. Wolf’s appointment violated the time limitations set forth in the FVRA. However, the court determined that Congress “tied the timing provision of Section 3346

1 only to offices filled under section 3345, and no others.” Casa de Maryland, 2020 WL 5500165, 2 at *16. The court relied on the plain language of the FVRA, including Congress’s precise use of 3 internal cross-references. Id., 2020 WL 5500165, at *15 (citing Sw. General I, 796 F.3d at 74); 4 see also Hooks v. Kitsap Tenant Support Servs., Inc., 816 F.3d 550, 559 (9th Cir. 2016)
 5 (“Throughout the FVRA, the Congress was precise in its use of internal cross-references,’ using 6 the term ‘subsection’ or ‘paragraph’ when it meant to refer to something less than a whole 7 section.”) (quoting Sw. General, I, 796 F.3d at 74).

8 In particular, the Casa de Maryland court noted that Section 3346 did not contain a cross-9 reference to Section 3347; it provided only that a “person serving as an acting officer as described 10 under section 3345” could serve for no longer than 210 days. Id. The court also reasoned that 11 “Congress took great pains to identify ‘Sections 3345 and 3346’ as the ‘exclusive means for 12 temporarily authorizing an acting official” to serve as an acting officer unless an agency specific 13 statute existed. Id., 2020 WL 5500165, at *16. The court then noted that when Mr. Wolf assumed 14 the role of Acting Secretary he was not a “first assistant” and had not been “tapped by the 15 President” and, thus, was not serving pursuant to Section 3345. Id., 2020 WL 5500165, at *18.
 16 Because the court construed Section 3346 to be tied to Section 3345, the court could “not find that 17 Wolf’s tenure contravene[d] the FVRA, despite his serving well past the FRVA’s 210 day time 18 frame.” Id.

19 Plaintiffs argue the Casa de Maryland court’s interpretation of Sections 3346 and 3347 is 20 flawed. They argue that Section 3346 by its terms applies to “a person serving as an acting officer 21 as described under section 3345” and posit that “Section 3345 describes officers ‘serving 22 temporarily due to death, resignation, or unavailability[.]’” Reply Br. at 5 n.10. In Plaintiffs’
 23 view, these are general descriptors that could also refer to officers serving under an agency-24 specific succession statute, such as Section 113(g)(2). The Court does not find this argument 25 persuasive. The preamble of Section 3345 refers to those conditions as circumstances that may 26 trigger the appointments, but the body Section 3345(a) describes the categories of individuals who 27 may be tapped to fill a vacancy.

28 In addition, the only cross-reference to Section 3347 in Section 3345, is in subsection

1 (c)(2), which states that “[f]or purposes of this section and sections 3346, 3347, 3348, 3349, 2 3349a, and 3349d, the expiration of a term of office is an inability to perform the functions and 3 duties of such office.” The Court does not find the Casa de Maryland court’s construction of 4 Sections 3346 and 3347 flawed. If Congress had intended Section 3346 to apply to individuals 5 “serving as an acting officer as described under” either section 3345 or under Section 3347, “it 6 likely would have said” so. Id. That conclusion is supported further by the fact that many agency-7 specific statutes incorporate their own time limits on temporary service. See Casa de Maryland, 8 2020 WL 5500165, at *18 & n.12.

9 Plaintiffs also focus on the fact that Section 113(g)(2) of the HSA states that the Secretary 10 may designate a further order of succession “notwithstanding” the FVRA, which is in contrast to 11 the phrase “for purposes of” used in Section 113(a)(1)(A) and 113(a)(1)(F) of the HSA. The latter 12 phrase implies limitation, where as “notwithstanding” generally means “in spite of” or “without 13 prevention or obstruction from or by” and, in the context of statutory construction “shows which 14 provision prevails in the event of a clash.” Sw. General II, 137 S.Ct. at 939 (citations omitted);
15 Hooks, 816 F.3d at 559 & n. 10; Sw. General I, 796 F.3d at 75. All parties agree with that general 16 proposition. Plaintiffs argue the phrase “notwithstanding” in Section 113(g)(2) of the HSA is 17 followed by “chapter 33 of Title 5[.]” Plaintiffs argue that this refers to all, not a portion of, of the 18 FVRA, and they contend there is no conflict between permitting the Secretary to designate a 19 further order of succession and placing the FVRA’s time limits on that appointment. The Court 20 concludes that a more natural read the notwithstanding clause in Sections 113(g)(1) and (g)(2) is 21 that it serves to demonstrate these sections operate as an agency-specific succession statute, 22 superseding the FVRA as the exclusive means to fill a vacancy in the office of DHS Secretary.
23 Cf. S. Rep. 105-250, at 15 (1998) (referencing Section 3347 and stating that “statutes enacted in 24 the future purporting to or argued to be construed to govern the temporary filling of offices 25 covered by this statute are not to be effective unless they expressly provide that they are 26 superseding the Vacancies Reform Act”).

27 Plaintiffs also argue that the Court should not follow the reasoning set forth in Casa de 28 Maryland because that court failed to consider whether its ruling that Mr. Wolf’s appointment

1 under the HSA was invalid also rendered his appointment invalid under the FVRA. Section 3347
2 states that “Sections 3345 and 3346 are the exclusive means for temporarily authorizing an acting 3 official to perform the functions and duties” of a PSA office, unless an agency-specific statute 4 authorizes designation. 5 U.S.C. § 3347(a)(1)(A). There is no language in Section 3347 that 5 suggests the exclusivity of the FVRA applies only when an official is properly designated 6 pursuant to an agency specific statute.

7 The Court also finds Plaintiffs’ reliance on Hooks unpersuasive. There, the Ninth Circuit
8 examined the validity of the appointment of the NLRB’s general counsel, noting it was undisputed 9 that the appointment did not satisfy the conditions of the NRLA’s succession statute. 816 F.3d at 10 855. The court then rejected the plaintiff’s argument that the NLRA’s succession statute was the 11 exclusive means to appoint an acting general counsel. 816 F.3d at 556. The D.C. Circuit and the 12 Supreme Court considered that same appointment in the Southwest General cases. The D.C.
13 Circuit, on which the Hooks court relied, expressly stated “[t]he President cited the FVRA as the 14 authority for [the] appointment.” Sw. General I, 796 F.3d at 71 (emphasis added); see also Sw.
15 General II, 137 S.Ct. at 937. Therefore, it is not clear that that the Hooks court was called upon to 16 decide how to evaluate the applicability of FVRA where an official has purportedly, but not 17 properly, been appointed pursuant to an agency specific statute. Cf. Webster v. Fall, 266 U.S. 507, 18 511 (1925) (“Questions which merely lurk in the record, neither brought to the attention of the 19 court nor ruled upon, are not to be considered as having been so decided as to constitute 20 precedents.”); United States v. Pepe, 895 F.3d 679, 688 (9th Cir. 2018) (“cases are not 21 precedential for propositions not considered”).

22 The Casa de Maryland court recognized the “tension of crediting an agency succession 23 statute as one that provides ‘temporary’ service that can continue indefinitely.” 2020 WL 24 5500165, at *18. Plaintiffs argue the Court should not adopt the court’s reasoning as to why that 25 tension did not warrant ruling in the plaintiffs’ favor. The Court will not repeat that reasoning 26 here, but it does find it persuasive, especially the court’s discussion of why, in the context of the 27 HSA, Congress would have wanted to “instill continuity in the functioning of the agency” in a 28 situation where the three top positions at DHS remained vacant. Id., 2020 WL 5500165, at *18-

20. Accordingly, the Court concludes Plaintiffs have not met their burden to show they are likely to succeed on the merits of their claim that Mr. McAleenan's and Mr. Wolf's appointments violated the provisions of the FVRA.

C. Plaintiffs Have Met Their Burden to Show the Final Rule Violates Some Procedural and Substantive Requirements of the APA.

In addition to allowing a court to set aside agency action that is contrary to law, a court may "hold unlawful and set aside agency action, findings and conclusions found to be - arbitrary, capricious" or "without observance of procedure required by law[.]" 5 U.S.C. §§ 706(2)(A), (D). Plaintiffs raise numerous arguments about why the Final Rule violates procedural and substantive requirements of the APA. The Court concludes they have met their burden to show a likelihood of success on the merits or, in the alternative, serious questions as to a subset of those arguments.

The Court expresses no opinion on the arguments it does not reach.

"The scope of review under the 'arbitrary and capricious' standard is narrow and a court is not to substitute its judgment for that of the agency. Nevertheless, the agency must examine the relevant data and articulate a satisfactory explanation for its action including a rational connection between the facts found and the choice made." Motor Vehicle Mfr. Ass'n of U.S., Inc. v. State Farm Mut. Auto Ins. Co., 463 U.S. 29, 43 (1989) (internal quotations omitted) ("State Farm"). "[T]he notice required by the APA, or information subsequently supplied to the public, must disclose the thinking that has animated the form of a proposed rule and the data upon which that rule is based." California ex rel Becerra v. U.S. Dep't of the Interior, 381 F. Supp. 3d 1153, 1173 (N.D. Cal. 2019) (quoting Home Box Office, Inc. v. F.C.C., 567 F.2d 9, 35 (D.C. Cir. 1977)).

A rule may be arbitrary and capricious "if the agency has relied on factors which Congress has not intended it to consider, entirely failed to consider an important aspect of the problem, offered an explanation for its decision that runs counter to the evidence before the agency, or is so implausible that it could not be ascribed to a difference in view or the product of agency expertise." State Farm, 463 U.S. at 43.

1 1. Failing to Disclose Data, Relying on Unexplained Data, and Ignoring Data in 2 the Record.

3 Plaintiffs argue that there are procedural flaws in the promulgation of the Final Rule 4 because Defendants failed to “disclose adequate information about the thinking and data on 5 which” the Final Rule is based, in particular the “dramatic change in [USCIS’s] financial 6 condition or its skyrocketing costs.” Reply Br. at 7:8-9. DHS did disclose the “thinking” that 7 animated the fee changes, namely that “[i]f USCIS continues to operate at current fee levels” it 8 would experience a deficit of $1,262.3 million, revised to $1,035.9 million in the Final Rule.
 9 NPRM, 84 Fed. Reg. at 62,282; Final Rule, 85 Fed. Reg. at 46,794 & Table 2; see also May IEFA 10 Fee Review at 5.

11 In some instances, if “an agency explains its decision with less than ideal clarity, a 12 reviewing court will not upset the decision on that account if the agency’s path may reasonably be 13 discerned.” Alaska Dep’t of Env’tl. Conservation v. E.P.A., 540 U.S. 461, 497 (2004) (internal 14 quotations and citations omitted). Defendants argue the NPRM and the Final Rule clearly explain 15 DHS’s decision, but even if they are less than ideal, argue the path DHS followed can “reasonably 16 be discerned.” For support, Defendants cite a section of the NPRM entitled “Full Cost Recovery.”
 17 NPRM, 84 Fed. Reg. at 62,283-284. As in other portions of the NPRM and the Final Rule, DHS 18 states that it may “charge fees at a level that will ensure recovery of all direct and indirect costs 19 associated with providing immigration adjudication and naturalization services.” See, e.g., 20 NPRM, 84 Fed. Reg. at 62,283; Final Rule, 85 Fed. Reg. at 46,796. That section provides some 21 information about the types of costs DHS can recover through fees. It also states that DHS uses an 22 Activity-Based Costing (“ABC”) model, “distribute[s] costs that are not attributed to, or driven by, 23 specific adjudication and naturalization, services,” and “make[s] additional adjustments to 24 effectuate specific policy objectives.” NPRM, 84 Fed. Reg. at 62,284. While this might provide a 25 general roadmap, nothing in that discussion provides data showing why USCIS’ fiscal situation 26 has become so dire.

27 Plaintiffs also acknowledge that DHS described four general categories of costs that would 28

1 comprise part of UCSIS’ budget. NPRM, 84 Fed. Reg. at 62,286 (citing transfer of funding to 2 ICE, pay and benefit adjustments for on-board staff, pay and benefits for new staff, and net
 3 additional costs). Plaintiffs argue that taking those estimates into account, the bulk of the budget
 4 remains unexplained. See, e.g., Dkt. No. 27-8, Declaration of Douglas B. Rand (“Rand Decl.”), ¶¶
 5 24-25. Defendants have not countered that point with argument or data. Plaintiffs also contend 6 that there is insufficient data in the record to understand how the model actually works and cite to 7 some results that appear inconsistent with that model. Id., ¶¶ 30-34.

8 In support of their argument that the calculations and data underlying the rule are adequate 9 and that Plaintiffs have not overcome the deference owed to DHS’ expertise, Defendants cite to 10 Consumer Electronics Association v. Federal Communications Commission, 347 F.3d 291 (D.C.
 11 Cir. 2003). There, the plaintiffs challenged a final rule that required certain televisions and other 12 devices capable of receiving over-the-air television signals to include a tuner that could receive 13 digital signals (“DTV”). The plaintiffs argued the FCC unreasonably assessed the costs of this 14 change to consumers. Id. at 293-94, 302. The court rejected that argument noting that although 15 the FCC’s assessment was not a “model of thorough consideration” it met the minimum 16 requirements for reasoned decision making. Id. at 302. The court reasoned that the FCC had been 17 gathering information about economies of scale for as long as it had been managing the DTV 18 transition and, during the rule making process, asked for comments on the initial projected costs of 19 the requirements of costs over time. Id. The comments submitted provided wide ranging 20 estimates, especially on the question of whether costs would decrease over time. The court 21 acknowledged the evidence before the FCC was “imperfect and uncertain” but determined it was 22 not unreasonable to assume that costs would fall. Therefore, it deferred to the FCC’s “predictive 23 judgment” and upheld the agency’s determination that those costs were not outweighed by the 24 benefits of the proposed rule. Id.

25 According to Defendants, “DHS saw no or limited decreases in the number of benefit 26 requests after its fee adjustments in 2007, 2010, and 2016.” They argue those references provide 27 the data that justified changes to the rule. See, e.g., Final Rule, 85 Fed. Reg. at 46,798, 46,805, 28 46,860, 46,881, 46,882, 46,886. DHS also stated that it “is unable to quantify how many people

1 will not apply [for immigration benefits] because they do not have access to fee waivers,” and 2 stated it “does not know the price elasticity of demand for immigration benefits, nor does DHS 3 know the level at which the fee increases become too high for applicants/petitioners to apply.” Id.
 4 at 46,797. DHS then stated it “disagreed that the fees will result in the negative effects the 5 commenters’ suggested” because it “believes that immigration to the United States remains 6 attractive ... and that its benefits continue to outweigh the costs noted by the commenters.” Id.
 7 DHS concludes that it “believes the price elasticity for immigration services is inelastic and 8 increases in price will have no impact on the demand for these services. This is true for all 9 immigration services impacted by this rule.” Id.

10 Unlike the FCC in Consumer Electronics, it is not immediately evident that DHS has been 11 gathering data over the years about the impact of price increases on applications for immigration 12 benefits. In addition, these statements appear to ignore information presented during the notice 13 and comment period that contradict DHS’ beliefs about price elasticity of demand. See, e.g., 14 Stretch Decl., ¶ 7, Ex. 6 (Comment Letter dated Dec. 30, 2019 from Naturalization Working 15 Group at 6 (citing Pastor, et al., National Partnership for New Americans, “Nurturing 16 Naturalization: could Lowering the Fee Help?” 17 (Feb. 2013)); Stretch Decl., ¶ 23, Ex. 22 17 (Comment Letter dated Dec. 30, 2019 from National Immigration Law Center (NILC), Ex. A, 18 Comment Letter dated Nov. 27, 2018 at 5 n.4, citing Hainmueller, et al., A randomized controlled 19 design reveals barriers to citizenship for low-income immigrants, at 1 (Jan. 30, 2018); see also 20 Dkt. No. 27-11, Declaration of Manuel Pastor, Jr., ¶ 17. Those facts support the conclusion that 21 Plaintiffs would be likely to succeed on the merits of their APA claim. See State Farm, 463 U.S.
 22 at 43 (rule may be arbitrary and capricious where explanation for decision runs counter to 23 evidence in the record).

24 2. Failure to Consider Important Aspects of the Problem.

25 The Defendants’ belief about the price elasticity of demand for immigration services leads 26 to another of Plaintiffs’ larger arguments about why the Final Rule is arbitrary and capricious: the 27 failure to consider important aspects of the problem, including the negative impact the rule will 28 have on low-income immigrant populations. Plaintiffs note that Defendants’ reliance on statistics

1 or data following prior fee increases is not a fair comparison because the Final Rule combines 2 increases with a correspondent decrease in the ability to obtain waivers of fees, a variable not 3 relevant to past fee changes. The Court agrees with that assessment.

4 In addition, at the hearing on this motion, Defendants conceded they did not take the 5 changes to the waiting period for an applicant for asylum to obtain an EAD into consideration 6 when promulgating the changes to the fees for immigration benefits. See also Final Rule, 85 Fed.
7 Reg. at 46,852 (noting that “[n]o asylum seeker may receive employment authorization before 180
8 days have passed since the filing of his or her application” and concluding that “charging asylum 9 seekers for the first work permit [would not create] a conflict between contradictory conditions 10 where aliens cannot work to pay their asylum fees and may incentivize people to work illegally”).

11 Defendants argue that DHS uses data available to it at the time of review and argue that by 12 the time the rule relating to the waiting period was issued, the Final Rule here was in the final 13 clearance process. However, this is not a situation where a rule promulgated by a different agency 14 could impact a rule being proposed by DHS. Rather, these were two rules proposed by the same 15 agency, at the same time, on overlapping topics. Further, DHS published the Final Rule in this 16 case on August 3, 2020. The final rule that impacted the waiting period had been published in 17 June. Thus, DHS’ reference in the Final Rule to a 180-day waiting period was, by that time, 18 demonstrably inaccurate. By failing to consider the combined impact of these rules, DHS either 19 failed to consider an important aspect of the problem and disregarded “inconvenient facts” about 20 the combined impact of these rules, Fox, 556 U.S. at 537, or DHS reached a conclusion that defies 21 common sense, cf. Casa de Maryland, 2020 WL 5500165, at *28 (“It is axiomatic that without 22 being able to work, asylum applicants lack the resources to pursue their claims.”). Either situation 23 lends further support to the conclusion that Plaintiffs would be likely to succeed on the merits of 24 this aspect of their challenge to the Final Rule or, in the alternative, that they have shown serious 25 questions going to the merits of that aspect of their APA claims.

26 3. Failure to Justify Policy Shifts.

27 Plaintiffs also argue Defendants failed to adequately justify the shift in policy from the 28 ability-to-pay principle to the beneficiary-pays principle utilized in the Final Rule or to adequately

1 justify the significant departure from past practice with regard to asylum fees. “Agencies are free 2 to change their existing policies as long as they provide a reasoned explanation for the change.”
3 Encino Motorcars, LLC v. Navarro, __ U.S. __, 136 S.Ct. 2117, 2125 (2016).

4 An agency may not, for example, depart from a prior policy sub 5 silentio or simply disregard rules that are still on the books. ... And 6 of course the agency must show that there are good reasons for the 7 new policy. But it need not demonstrate to a court’s satisfaction that 8 the reasons for the new policy are better than the reasons for the old 9 one; it suffices that the new policy is permissible under the statute, 10 that there are good reasons for it, and that the agency believes it to 11 be better, which the conscious change of course adequately 12 indicates. This means that the agency need not always provide a 13 more detailed justification than what would suffice for a new policy 14 created on a blank slate. Sometimes it must—when, for example, its 15 new policy rests upon factual findings that contradict those which 16 underlay its prior policy; or when its prior policy has engendered
17 serious reliance interests that must be taken into account. ... It 18 would be arbitrary or capricious to ignore such matters. In such 19 cases it is not that further justification is demanded by the mere fact 20 of policy change; but that a reasoned explanation is needed for 21 disregarding facts and circumstances that underlay or were 22 engendered by the prior policy.

23 FCC v. Fox Television Studios, Inc., 556 U.S. 502, 515-16 (2009) (“Fox”); see also Organized 24 Vill. of Kake v. U.S. Dep’t of Agric., 795 F.3d 956, 966 (9th Cir. 2015) (quoting Fox, 556 U.S. at 25 515-16).

26 The record establishes that DHS was aware and acknowledged that it was shifting from the 27 ability-to-pay principle to the beneficiary-pays principle. See Final Rule 85 Fed. Reg. at 46,799
28 (“[I]n this final rule DHS is emphasizing the beneficiary-pays principle of user fees.”), 46,806-07 (acknowledging “change from its previous approach” and stating “[i]n prior years, USCIS fees have given significant weight to the ability-to-pay principle[.]”) DHS also noted that shift in policy as it related to naturalization fees, stating:

[t]he fee for [Form N-400] is increasing more than for most other forms because DHS has historically held the fee ... below the estimated cost to USCIS of adjudicating the form in recognition of the social value of citizenship. Immigration services provide varying levels of social benefit and previously DHS accounted for some aspect of the social benefit of specific services through holding fees below their cost. However, in this final rule DHS is emphasizing the beneficiary-pays principle of user fees.

Final Rule, 85 Fed. Reg. at 46,799. DHS also acknowledged the fact that the decision to impose a

1 fee to apply for asylum was a change in policy. Therefore, DHS was aware that it was changing 2 positions. That “conscious change of course adequately indicates” an agency’s belief that a new 3 policy is better. Fox, 556 U.S. at 515. DHS’s belief that the beneficiary-pays principle is a better
 4 policy also is reflected in its statements that it believes the policy is more “equitable.” See, e.g., 5 Final Rule, 85 Fed. Reg. at 46,806 (“DHS ... believes these changes will make USCIS’ fee 6 schedule more equitable for all immigration benefits by requiring fees to be paid mostly by those 7 who receive and benefit from the applicable service.”), 46,819 (same), 46,890 (same).

8 However, at least five Plaintiffs attest that they have structured their service models based 9 on the ability-to-pay principle, engendering reliance interests in its continued application. See,
 10 e.g., Benito Decl. (ICRR), ¶¶ 29-30; Byrne Decl. (IRC), ¶ 34; Byun Decl. (ACRS), ¶¶ 15, 25;
 11 Chenoweth Decl. (CLINIC), ¶¶ 23, 33, 37; Rodgers Decl. (ILRC), ¶¶ 19-25. Defendants argue 12 that “at most” they were only required to consider applicant’s interests, rather than any reliance
 13 interests Plaintiffs might have, because Plaintiffs are outside the relevant zone of interests served 14 by Section 1356(m). The Court is not persuaded.

15 First, Fox does not limit its discussion of reliance interests to interests that are “directly 16 affected” by proposed action; it requires a more detailed justification when a prior policy has 17 “engendered serious reliance interests that must be taken into account.” Fox, 556 U.S. at 515.
 18 Second, despite multiple rounds of briefing on various issues and oral argument, Defendants have 19 not argued that Plaintiffs lack standing to sue. The zone of interests test cited by Defendants “is 20 not meant to be especially demanding;” it will deny a plaintiff a right of review where those 21 interests “are so marginally related to or inconsistent with the purposes implicit in the statute that 22 it cannot reasonably be assumed that Congress intended to permit the suit.” Clarke v. Sec. Indus.
 23 Ass’n, 479 U.S. 388, 399 (1987). The record shows Plaintiffs directly or indirectly provide 24 services to individuals who will be impacted by the changes in the fee schedule and the fee waiver 25 policy, making Plaintiffs interests more than “marginally related” to statutory and regulatory 26 provisions governing those issue.

27 For that reason, and for the reasons discussed in Section D, infra, regarding irreparable 28 harm, Plaintiffs’ reliance interests cannot be discounted, even if Defendants may not be required to

1 align the fees with those interests. Cf. Dep't of Homeland Sec. v. Regents of the Univ. of Ca., ___
 2 U.S. ___, 140 S.Ct. 1891, 1914 (2020) (noting that reliance interests of individuals indirectly 3 impacted by DACA program were “noteworthy” but not necessarily “dispositive” concerns and 4 stating “DHS may determine ... that other interests and policy concerns outweigh any reliance 5 interests,” but DHS failed to make that “difficult decision” by ignoring reliance interests”).

6 Even if Plaintiffs’ reliance interests are not pertinent to this inquiry, DHS was not writing 7 on a “blank slate” with regard to fee increases, the changes to fee waivers, and the asylum fee.
 8 Therefore, the Court concludes that “a more detailed justification” for policy changes that 9 contradict prior findings or had engendered reliance interests is required. Fox, 556 U.S. at 515-16.
 10 For example, Defendants do not provide a persuasive explanation of why it is more likely that 11 those with legitimate claims for asylum are more likely to have $50 than those who do not; nor do 12 they supply data to support that proposition. DHS also acknowledged there is no quantitative 13 benefit from the fee. See Final Rule, 85 Fed. Reg. at 46,894.

14 With respect to the fees associated with naturalization, Plaintiffs also argue that the shift in 15 policy conflicts with congressional intent. Plaintiffs cite to an appropriations bill that stated 16 “USCIS is expected to continue the use of fee waivers for applicants who can demonstrate an 17 inability to pay the naturalization fee. USCIS is also encouraged to consider whether the current 18 naturalization fee is a barrier to naturalization for those earning between 150 percent and 200 19 percent of the federal poverty guidelines, who are not currently eligible for a fee waiver.” DHS 20 Appropriations Bill, 2019 H.R. Rep. No. 115-948, at 61-62 (Sept. 12, 2018).

21 In large part, DHS responded to such concerns by reference to the arguments about price 22 elasticity of demand and its belief that the change is necessary to fully recover costs of 23 adjudication. For the reasons discussed above, that explanation is not supported by adequate data.
 24 The Court also finds, at this stage, that Defendants’ deviations from a beneficiary-pays principle 25 are inconsistent and conflict with the comments presented on the effects of these changes on low-
 26 income and vulnerable immigrant populations. See, e.g., Final Rule, 85 Fed. Reg. at 46,841
 27 (deviating from the beneficiary-pays principle on Form I-360, because would “place unreasonable 28 burden” on religious organizations petitioning for their workers); Final Rule, 85 Fed. Reg. at

1 46,850 and NPRM, 84 Fed. Reg. at 62,313 (deviating from beneficiary-pays principle regarding 2 foreign adoptions because “it would be contrary to humanitarian and public interests to impose” 3 full fee “on prospective adoptive parents seeking to adopt a child from another country”).

4 4. Reliance on Factors Congress did not Intend DHS to Consider.

5 In addition to the issues on the asylum fees discussed above, Plaintiffs argue the decision 6 to impose the asylum related fees is arbitrary and capricious because Defendants stated during the 7 NPRM that the fee was intended to deter frivolous applications. NPRM, 84 Fed. Reg. at 62,320; 8 see also Stretch Reply Decl., ¶ 7 Ex. 40 (Regulatory Impact Analysis (“RIA”), July 22, 2020 at 9 150 (“DHS set the fee so that it would not require an alien an unreasonable amount of time to 10 save, may generate some revenue to offset costs, and may deter some filings.”).) Defendants 11 argue that throughout the Final Rule they made clear their intent is to generate some revenue to 12 cover costs and that “DHS does not intend to discourage meritorious asylum claims or unduly 13 burden any applicant, group of applications, or their families.” Final Rule, 85 Fed. Reg. at 46,844; 14 see also. Id. at 46,850, 46,882. Although the language used in the NRPM and the RIA does not 15 appear in the Final Rule, that purpose can reasonably be inferred from DHS’s statement that “it 16 did not intend to discourage meritorious asylum claims[.]” Final Rule, 85 Fed. Reg. at 46,844 17 (emphasis added).

18 For each of the reasons discussed above, the Court concludes Plaintiffs have demonstrated 19 a likelihood of success on the merits or, in the alternative, have demonstrated serious questions 20 going to the merits their challenges to the Final Rule under the APA.

21 D. Plaintiffs Have Met Their Burden to Show Irreparable Harm.

22 In order to obtain an injunction Plaintiffs must show it is likely – rather than possible – that 23 they will suffer irreparable harm. Winter, 555 U.S. at 20. “Organizations may establish 24 irreparable harm by showing ‘ongoing harms to their organizational missions.’” Barr, 964 F.3d at 25 854 (quoting Valle del Sol Inc. v. Whiting, 732 F.3d 1006, 1029 (9th Cir. 2013)). Defendants 26 argue Plaintiffs “rely on economic harm[.]” which is not irreparable. Opp. Br. at 14:21. In the 27 context of APA claims, “controlling circuit precedent establishes otherwise.” Barr, 964 F.3d at 28 854; see also East Bay Sanctuary Covenant v. Trump, 950 F.3d 1242, 1280 (9th Cir. 2020)

1 (“Trump II”).¹² “[E]conomic harms may be irreparable because plaintiffs are otherwise unable to 2 recover monetary damages.” Barr, 964 F.3d at 854.

3 In Barr, the plaintiffs presented un-refuted evidence that the rule at issue “harm[ed] their 4 mission of representing and assisting asylum seekers and results in a substantial loss of 5 organizational funding” and jeopardized funding streams. Id. The court reasoned that because the 6 rule rendered “a substantial portion of plaintiffs’ clients categorically ineligible for asylum, it 7 directly threatens their standard caseload, and consequently, their caseload dependent funding.”
8 Id. The Ninth Circuit, therefore, affirmed the district court’s conclusion that the plaintiffs 9 “established a sufficient likelihood of irreparable harm through diversion of resources and the non-10 speculative loss of substantial funding from other sources.” Id. (quoting East Bay Sanctuary 11 Covenant v. Barr, 385 F. Supp. 3d 922, 957 (N.D. Cal. 2019)). The plaintiffs in Trump II also 12 presented evidence that showed they would “suffer a significant change in their programs and a 13 concomitant loss of funding.” 950 F.3d at 1280. The Court held “[b]oth constitute irreparable 14 injuries: the first is an intangible injury; and the second is economic harm for which the [plaintiffs] 15 have no vehicle for recovery.” Id.

16 Plaintiffs submitted un rebutted evidence that, as part of their overall missions, they assist 17 low-income immigrants with applications for immigration benefits, including naturalization and 18 asylum. Benito Decl., ¶¶ 5, 13; Byrne Decl., ¶¶ 3-4, 6, 27; Byun Decl., ¶¶ 3-5, 14; Chenowith
19 Decl., ¶¶ 2-3, 5, 32; Smith Decl., ¶¶ 3-7; Rodgers Decl., ¶¶ 2, 24; Salas Decl., ¶¶ 2, 14; Stolz 20 Decl., ¶¶ 3, 33. Plaintiffs attest that fee waivers, which from the record are tied to the ability-to-21 pay principle that was reflected in prior fee changes, are critical to fulfilling their mission.

22 According to Plaintiffs, the combination of the changes to fee waivers and the fee increases will 23 either increase their own costs or make existing business models unsustainable. See, e.g., Benito
24 Decl., ¶¶ 11, 27, 29-30; Byrne Decl., ¶¶ 27-29, 34; Byun Decl., ¶¶ 15-16, 20, 24-25; Chenowith

26 ¹² Plaintiffs also present evidence that the Final Rule threatens the existence of certain 27 programs and that if they are unable to meet deliverables the good will and reputation they have 28 established with donors will suffer. See, e.g., Byun Decl., ¶ 26, Smith Decl., ¶ 37. Defendants do not present evidence to refute those assertions, which further support the Court’s conclusion that Plaintiffs would suffer irreparable harm in the absence of an injunction. See, e.g., hiQ Labs., Inc.
v. LinkedIn Corp., 938 F.3d 985, 993 (9th Cir. 2019).

1 Decl., ¶¶ 17, 22-23, 26-27, 33, 36; Smith Decl., ¶¶ 19, 21, 24, 27, 29, 35; Rodgers Decl., ¶¶ 12, 19, 2 21, 23, 27; Salas Decl., ¶¶ 17, 20, 23; Stolz Decl., ¶¶ 7, 24, 30-31, 33.) Like the plaintiffs in Barr
3 and Trump II, each Plaintiff attests that the Final Rule has and will continue to impact their ability 4 to meet funding obligations, has and will continue to cause them to divert existing resources, or 5 that both scenarios have and will continue to occur. Benito Decl., 13-15, 26, 39-44; Byrne Decl., 6 ¶¶ 14, 30, 35-37, 39; Byun Decl., ¶¶ 6-7, 16, 25-30; Chenowith Decl., ¶¶ 11, 39, 40, 42-43, 46, 48, 7 54, 56; Smith Decl., ¶¶ 8, 21, 27, 33, 37-42; Rodgers Decl., ¶¶ 5-6, 10, 23-26, 28-32; Salas Decl., 8 ¶¶ 3, 18-20, 23-24, 28; Stolz Decl., ¶¶ 4, 11-15, 28, 30, 34-39. CHIRLA also attests that its 9 members either will not apply for or will be forced to wait to apply for benefits, impacting family 10 unification. Salas Decl., ¶¶ 29-31, 34; cf. Smith Decl., ¶¶ 32-33 (noting similar harms to 11 population that EBSC serves). In addition, Plaintiffs filed suit within three weeks after DHS 12 published the Final Rule. Although “not dispositive”, it does suggest “urgency and impending 13 irreparable harm.” Trump II, 950 F.3d at 1280.

14 Defendants did not address the Ninth Circuit’s holdings in either Barr or Trump II in their 15 briefs, and their arguments on the factual record here do not provide a basis for the Court to 16 meaningfully distinguish those cases. Defendants’ arguments at the hearing on the issue of 17 irreparable harm were similarly unpersuasive. Accordingly, the Court concludes that Plaintiffs 18 have established a likelihood of irreparable harm before the Court reaches a decision on the merits 19 based on their showing of “non-speculative loss of substantial funding from other sources” and 20 their showing of the need to alter their programs. See Barr, 964 F.3d at 1280; Trump II, 950 F.3d 21 at 1280.

22 E. Plaintiffs Have Met Their Burden to Show the Balance of Equities and Public Interest
23 Weighs in Favor of an Injunction.

24 Because the government is a party, the third and fourth Winter factors merge. Barr, 964 25 F.3d at 854. “[T]he government and the public have an interest in the efficient administration of 26 the immigration laws at the border. ... Control over matters of immigration is a sovereign 27 prerogative, largely within the control of the executive and the legislature.” Trump II, 950 F.3d at 28 1281 (internal quotations, citations and alterations omitted). Plaintiffs do not suggest those 1 interests would not extend to the efficient administration of applications for immigration benefits.

2 Defendants also argue they do not, as Plaintiffs contend, have a “surplus,” and DHS reported only 3 that USCIS would not deplete its carryover balance. Defendants also argue that if the Court 4 enjoins the rule USCIS will forego millions of dollars of revenue each day, which will lead to 5 funding cuts, furloughs, and further delays in processing applications.

6 The public would have an interest in reducing or relieving burdens on the adjudication of 7 immigration benefits. Cf. Barr, 964 F.3d at 855 (“On the side of the government, the public has 8 an interest in relieving burdens on the asylum system and the efficient conduct of foreign 9 affairs.”). However, the weight the Court will ascribe to those factors depends, in part, on the 10 validity of the Final Rule. Trump II, 950 F.3d at 1282. For the reasons set forth in Sections B and 11 C, the Court has determined Plaintiffs are likely to succeed on the merits on at least some portions 12 of their APA claims that the Final Rule is invalid. For that reason, and for reasons discussed 13 below, the Court places less weight on this factor. Id.

14 Plaintiffs persuasively argue that the public interest would be served by enjoining or 15 staying the effective date of the Final Rule because if it takes effect, it will prevent vulnerable and 16 low-income applicants from applying for immigration benefits, will block access to humanitarian 17 protections, and will expose those populations to further danger. Plaintiffs also cite comments and 18 research that argue the public at large would be harmed if the Final Rule goes into effect because it 19 will negatively impact tax revenues and would delay individuals seeking to naturalize from 20 participating in essential civic activities like voting, service in public office, and jury service.
21 Defendants do not counter those arguments.

22 Finally, in light of the issues raised regarding the validity of Mr. McAleenan’s and Mr.
23 Wolf’s appointments, the Court concludes the public has an interest in avoiding overreach of 24 Executive power with respect to appointments that require the informed consent of the Legislative 25 branch. Cf. Barr, 964 F.3d at 855 (affirming district court’s conclusion that public interest is 26 served by “ensuring that statutes enacted by their representatives are not imperiled by executive 27 fiat,” where court found the rule at issue was “contrary to the asylum statute and contravene[d]
28 clear congressional intent to give effect to our international treaty obligations”); Trump II, 950

1 F.3d at 1281 (“[T]he public has an interest in ensuring that the “statutes enacted by [their]
 2 representatives” are not imperiled by executive fiat.”) (quoting East Bay Sanctuary Covenant v.
 3 Trump, 932 F.3d 742, 779 (9th Cir. 2018) (“Trump I”), in turn quoting Maryland v. King, 567 U.S.
 4 1301, 1301 (2012) (Roberts, C.J., in chambers)).

5 The Court concludes the Plaintiffs have met their burden to show the public interest and 6 the balance of the equities tip sharply in favor of enjoining implementation and staying the 7 effective date of the Final Rule.

8 F. The Scope of the Injunctive Relief.

9 Plaintiffs argue the Final Rule should be enjoined or stayed in its entirety. Defendants 10 argue Plaintiffs would not be “entitled to injunctive relief with respect to any aspect of the rule 11 where they have not substantiated a specific harm[.]” Opp. Br. at 15:6-17. Neither party directly 12 addressed the geographic scope of any remedy to be imposed. The Court “recognizes that the 13 proper scope of injunctions against agency action is a matter of intense and active controversy.” 14 Innovation Law Lab v. Wolf, 951 F.3d 986, 990 (9th Cir. 2020) (staying portion of decision 15 granting nationwide injunction and limiting injunction to “geographical boundaries of the Ninth 16 Circuit”).

17 The Court has “considerable discretion in crafting suitable equitable relief[.]” Trump II, 18 950 F.3d at 1282. Injunctive relief “should be no more burdensome to the defendant than 19 necessary to provide complete relief to the plaintiffs before the court.” Id. (citation omitted); 20 accord Barr, 964 F.3d at 855-56. An injunction need not, however, “affect only the parties in the 21 suit.” Bresgal v. Brock, 843 F.2d 1163, 1169-70 (9th Cir. 1987). A “broad” injunction may be 22 “appropriate when necessary to remedy a plaintiff’s harm.” Barr, 964 F.3d at 855. Plaintiffs have 23 shown the Final Rule interferes with their organizational missions and is likely to cause them to 24 lose funding. In Barr, the court concluded that “[c]omplete relief for plaintiff must remedy both 25 harms,” and it determined that the plaintiffs did “not operate in a fashion that permits neat 26 geographic boundaries.” Id. at 856 (quoting Trump II, 950 F.3d at 1282-83). The Court concludes 27 the same is true in this case. The Court also has received amicus briefs from a wide array of local 28 and state governments arguing in favor of setting aside the Final Rule. The Final Rule also

1 touches on immigration policy, and “cases implicating immigration policy have a particularly 2 strong claim for uniform, nationwide relief.” Id. at 857 (internal quotations and citations omitted, 3 and citing cases). The Court concludes the record demonstrates that universal relief is 4 warranted.¹³

5 The Court is mindful of the fact that the Final Rule contains a severability provision. Final 6 Rule, 85 Fed. Reg. at 46,921 (citing 8 C.F.R. § 106.6). In Casa de Maryland, the court cited to a 7 similar severability provision to show why a more limited injunction was appropriate. 2020 WL 8 5500165, at *33 (noting severability provision created presumption that DHS “did not intend the 9 validity of the [remaining rules] ... to depend on the validity of the ... offensive provision”).
10 Because of the number of fees and policies addressed by the Final Rule and taking into 11 consideration the severability provision, the Court directed Plaintiff to submit a statement of the 12 fees that would most impact the populations they serve. See Dkt. No. 95. The Court has carefully 13 considered whether it should limit its stay to the forms covered in that list, the imposition of the 14 asylum fee, and the changes to the fee exemptions and waivers.

15 However, the Court has determined that Plaintiffs are likely to show that Mr. McAleenan’s 16 and Mr. Wolf’s appointments impact the validity of the Final Rule in its entirety. In addition,
17 many of the flaws identified in its discussion of why Plaintiffs are likely to succeed on the merits
18 of their arguments on the other procedural and substantive violations of the APA also impact fees 19 and forms beyond those identified by Plaintiffs. In the context of the APA, when such findings 20 are made “the ordinary result is that the rules are vacated – not that their application to the 21 individual petitioners is proscribed.” Trump II, 950 F.3d at 1283 (internal quotations and citations 22 omitted); accord Barr, 964 F.3d at 856-57 (“[v]acatur of an agency rule prevents its application to 23 all those who would otherwise be subject to its operation) (citing cases).

24 Accordingly, the Court concludes it is appropriate to stay the effective date of the Final 25 Rule pending resolution of the merits in this case. See Washington v. U.S. Dep’t of Homeland

26

27 ¹³ The Casa de Maryland declined to issue a nationwide injunction on the basis that it was 28 bound by a recent Fourth Circuit decision that the plaintiffs did not meaningfully distinguish,
Casa de Maryland v. Trump, 971 F.3d 220 (4th Cir. 2020). See Casa de Maryland, 2020 WL 5500165, at *32.

1 Sec., 408 F. Supp. 3d 1191, 1212-1213, 1223 (E.D. Wash. 2019).

2 G. Security.

3 Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 65(c), the Court finds in its discretion that it is 4 not proper to impose any security for the preliminary injunction because (1) despite the assertion 5 that USCIS “would continue to forgo millions of dollars of revenue each day” if the Final Rule is 6 stayed or enjoined, Defendants did not request a bond; and (2) there is a significant public interest
7 at stake. See, e.g., East Bay Sanctuary Covenant v. Trump, 349 F. Supp. 3d 838, 868-69 (N.D.
8 Cal. 2018) (citing Johnson v. Couturier, 472 F.3d 1067, 1086 (9th Cir. 2009) (finding that the 9 district court retains discretion “as the amount of the security required, if any”)).

10 H. The Court Denies the Government’s Request for a Brief Administrative Stay.

11 In general, a motion to stay pending appeal must be presented to the district court in the 12 first instance. Fed. R. App. P. 8(a)(1)(A). Because the Final Rule was scheduled to go into effect 13 a week after the hearing on the motion, the Court posed a question to the parties about their 14 positions on a stay of the ruling pending appeal. At that time, Defendants’ counsel noted that they 15 were not the decision makers on whether to appeal or whether Defendants would seek a stay.
16 Therefore, they asked that if the Court’s ruling was adverse to them, it impose a brief 17 administrative stay to allow that process to occur. A stay beyond October 2, 2020, would allow 18 the Final Rule to go into effect, thereby altering the status quo. For that reason, the Court denies 19 Defendants’ request for a brief administrative stay. If Defendants do file an appeal, nothing in this 20 Order shall preclude them from filing a motion to stay before this Court.

21 CONCLUSION

22 For the foregoing reasons, the Court GRANTS Plaintiffs’ motion for a preliminary 23 injunction and a stay of the effective date of the Final Rule. Accordingly,

24 1. Pursuant to 5 U.S.C. section 705 the Court STAYS implementation and the 25 effective date of of USCIS Immigration Fee Schedule and Changes to Certain Other Immigration 26 Benefit Request Requirements, 85 Fed. Reg. 46,788 (Aug. 3, 2020) (the “Final Rule”) in its 27 entirety pending final adjudication of this matter.

28 2. Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 65, Defendants Wolf, in his official

1 capacity under the title of Acting Secretary of DHS; Cuccinelli, in his official capacity under the 2 title of Senior Official Performing the Duties of the Deputy Secretary of DHS; DHS; and USCIS, 3 and all persons acting under their direction, ARE ENJOINED from implementing or enforcing the 4 Final Rule or any portion thereof.

5 3. This preliminary injunction and stay shall take effect immediately and shall remain 6 in effect pending trial in this action or further of this Court.

7 4. The posting of security is waived.

8 IT IS SO ORDERED.
